INTRODUCTION TO DARWIN :-

Charles Robert Darwin was an English naturalist, geologist and biologist was born on 12 February 1809 in Shrewsbury, England. While Darwin's early interest in nature led him to neglect his medical education at the University of Edinburgh, he helped to investigate marine invertebrates. The period of his study in the University of Cambridge (Christ's college) encouraged his passion for natural science. In 1831 when Darwin was just 22 years old, he set out on a scientific expedition on a ship called the HMS Beagle. He was the chief naturalist of the voyage. As a naturalist, it was his job to observe and collect specimens of plants, animals, rocks, and fossils wherever the expedition went ashore. During his voyage on the Beagle, Darwin made many observations that helped him develop his theory of evolution. Darwin's most important observations were made on the Galapagos Islands and is the foundation of explaining the diversity of life forms on the earth. He explained his groundbreaking ideas on evolution in a book called, 'On the Origin of species' published in 1859, The vast majority of his ideas for propounding his theory of animal evolution is based on his observations during the voyage on HMS Beagle.
